

SIDNEY DREW PLAYS
IN ONE-ACT PLAYLETNew Feature Is Added to Picture
Bill at the Vitaphon Theatre.

The merits of the Vitaphon Theatre do not consist alone of the superior picture plays that have made the house a pleasure Mecca. This week there is a distinctly new feature in the presentation of a one-act playlet that is delightfully portrayed, and last night was enthusiastically received.

Sidney Drew appeared with five other Vitaphon players in "What the Moon Saw," a highly modern episode that ran the gamut of tragedy and had the saving element of comedy at the psychological moment. It depended almost entirely for its success upon the ability of Mr. Drew, for it was nearly a one-man playlet—and it lost nothing in its presentation by being so. Mr. Drew was very capable, and what support was required was acceptably furnished, notably by Miss Edwina Robbins and

S. Rankin Drew, the latter being the author of the little drama. Another pleasing feature of the screen show was the appearance of the Mesanotte Trio in song classics. In addition, the picture programme was of more than ordinary excellence. Edna and Alice Nash were captivated as principals in "The Athletic Family." Norma Talmadge proved again her laurels in "Sunshine and Shadows," while Jay Dwiggins out-Hunnyed Bunny and Flora Finch maintained her reputation in "A Strand of Blond Hair." The closing feature was a well produced comedy called "O. C. D."

Swift & Company's sales of Beef in New York City for the week ending Saturday, Dec. 5 averaged as follows: Domestic Beef, 11.08 cents; Imported Beef, 11.04 cents per pound.—Advt.

RAID DANCE FOR SLAYER.

Detectives Arrest Fourth Man Accused in Quinn Killing.

Detectives invaded Arlington Hall, No. 25 St. Mark's Place, where a dance of the Fork Flattery Association was in progress, early to-day and arrested a dancer who said he was Patrick Templeton, alias Chicago Faddy, of No. 417 West Forty-sixth Street. He is locked up at Police Headquarters charged with complicity in the killing of James Dunn, shot in a gang fight in Eleventh Street on Oct. 24. Three other arrests in the case have already been made.
